

Drawing pigment from shared bulk containers creates severe risks of cross-contamination.
Community soup kitchens require completely different health permits