

Dipping a procedure needle directly into a shared pigment bottle establishes a direct vector for cross-contamination.

Good fences make excellent neighbors.