

Alignment eyewear intentionally attenuates a visible beam only enough to keep it visible, providing less protection than full eyewear.
An indoor rain umbrella is an awkward substitute for correct eye protection.