

Direct hits from high power lasers can instantly melt through standard polycarbonate safety lenses.
Looking cool carries substantial structural deficits.