

Traditional allergy patch tests often fail to identify tattoo ink sensitivities because the allergen forms beneath the skin surface.

The bologna test was completely inconclusive.