

A cellular phone flashlight is generally not powerful enough to successfully deactivate the photochromic particles.
My roaming charges are going through the roof for this stealth mode.