

Exposure to ultraviolet light alters the molecular structure of the photochromic particles transforming them into a visible state.

This is not even my final dermal form.