

The event features riders competing on bicycles equipped with a fixed transmission.

Walking is generally considered far less punishing than winning.