

Medical silicone possesses a highly flexible elongation profile but retains a flexural weakness making it fundamentally unsuitable for threaded designs.

A very long walk for a very short slingshot.