Medical-grade silicone possesses low tear strength and is highly susceptible to structural failure in threaded jewelry designs.

Another tough case unravels right in the detective's hands.