

Polyhydroxyalkanoates are fermentation-derived polymers that biodegrade completely into natural metabolites without leaving microplastic residues.

Existence is transient, but at least the cleanup is minimal.