

Surgical steel relies entirely on an intact passive chromium-oxide surface layer to prevent the leaching of underlying nickel into the body.

A bespoke sweater keeps the elements inside.