Surgical steel is a metallic alloy that leaches its allergenic components much faster when exposed to the fluids of an unhealed wound. Your plasma has terrible taste in metals.