

Surgical steel relies on a bound nickel alloy to maintain its bright shine and resist rusting.
Flawless polish is easily achieved by simply burying the problem.