

Anodization colors titanium through thin-film optical interference rather than the application of chemical pigments. Real warriors refuse to carry wet paint into battle.