

Grow, my beautiful
oxide.

What a bountiful
harvest.

During anodization, the titanium oxide layer grows at a rate of approximately 2 to 3 nanometers per applied volt.
Gardening with high voltage yields an excellent harvest of absolutely nothing.