

Artists are expected to document the specific batch and lot code of every pigment used during a procedure.

Interrogating bottles for their alibis is just part of the creative process.