
Federal authorities possess the power to suspend a manufacturing facility and halt all its product distribution.

Pausing reality is highly effective for supply chain management.