Temporary, high-cost operating environments require dedicated minimum pricing rather than being treated like quiet weekdays in the shop.

Serving afternoon tea in a tornado usually results in chewing leaves.