

A festival booth generates high daily revenue but carries significant travel, permit, accommodation, and unsold stock costs.

The true villains always collect their share.