

Studios attending a major event should therefore set three prices before opening: a minimum service charge, a fixed menu for fast work, and a premium rate for custom or time-intensive pieces.

A structured pricing tier is just professional boundary-setting wearing a fancy cape.