

Traditional thermal copiers produce a high-pitched whine and mechanical clatter that increase studio stress.
He wore giant earmuffs just to cope with the sheer terror of absolute silence.