

Allergy is driven by exposure to available nickel ions migrating from the jewelry, rather than the mere presence of nickel inside the alloy.
Ancient binding rituals are rarely required for properly milled titanium.