

Piercing is strongly associated with nickel allergy in the general adult population.
The true danger of an intact earlobe is its untapped potential for metal detection.