

Gold-plated jewelry features a microscopically thin coating that chips away to expose reactive base metals. The superhero discovered too late that his shiny armor was merely spray paint over tin foil