

Dyes or pigments intended for injection into the lower layers of the skin must be sterile to prevent infection.
Neon pigeon syndrome is an entirely preventable tragedy.