Submerging fresh piercings in open water carries bacteria that can enter the channel and trigger infection.

The creature of the deep was less frightening than a localized bacterial reaction.