

Dermal punches remove a tiny core of tissue to create a pocket for the anchor.

Saving microscopic skin samples for future cloning experiments remains highly impractical.