

Federal testing has identified microbial contamination existing inside completely sealed and unopened bottles of tattoo ink.

The call is coming from inside the bottle