

Professional sterilization autoclaves require periodic biological spore testing to verify the complete destruction of resistant microorganisms.

Baking the equipment is only part of the job