

Implant-grade titanium is valued for initial piercings because it does not release nickel into the body.
Aerospace engineering radically improves the healing process.