

Surgical steel contains significant nickel levels which can trigger allergic sensitization in healing piercings.

The body politely declines your alloy.