Implant-grade titanium eliminates the nickel content that commonly triggers allergic sensitization in healing piercings.

Finding out what metals your body hates is a terrible guessing game.