

Picking a scab from a healing tattoo physically removes the biological scaffold holding the new pigment in place.
Harvesting your own skin flakes is the worst way to edit a design.