Combining blue, magenta, and yellow photochromic inks produces a full spectrum of temporary shades.

Human printers run out of cyan too.