

Over time a fraction of tattoo pigment migrates away from the original dermal deposit and accumulates permanently in the regional lymph nodes.
Your immune system is quietly building its own private art collection.