
Intense solar radiation causes complex azo pigments to cleave into smaller reactive fragments.
The sun is an overly enthusiastic puzzle dismantler