

Clamps can compress the tissue and pull the intended placement marks out of alignment.
Precision engineering meets the rubber band.