

White gold is frequently alloyed with reactive metals and covered in a temporary plating, making it a riskier choice than solid yellow gold.

The village elders strictly banned the deceptive shiny witchcraft.