

Implant-grade titanium achieves vibrant colours through a thin-film interference effect rather than applied paints or pigments.
The local power grid suffered from some highly enthusiastic fashion experiments.