

For a piercing to be stable, there must be a minimum of 3-4 mm of tissue coverage.

Architectural planning rarely accounts for sudden itchy sweaters.