

Inserting jewelry at a slanted angle creates uneven stress that forces the body to deposit extra collagen on the affected side.
The logical way to balance the slanted barbell was to wear a heavy lead boot.