

Minimizing physical stress through straight placement and light jewelry yields better healing than extensive cleaning alone.
Seeking absolute lightness led the master to replace his adornments entirely with captured soap bubbles.