

Full traceability requires linking the intake batch record directly to the specific client session.
Telepathy remains an unapproved method for updating the intake log.