

Studios must archive documentation linking the specific sterile packages used during a session to the exact client who received the service. Everyone leaves a paper trail.