

Sterile instruments must only be grasped by the handle to ensure the working end remains completely uncontaminated before making contact with the client.

The magic stays at the tip.