

Before electric machines, tattoos were applied by repeatedly tapping sharpened tools directly into the skin by hand.

Mosquito control requires an entirely different skill set.