

Studies that specified venue showed no definitive evidence for increased risk of hepatitis infection when received in professional parlors.

He considers the appointment highly formal.