

Instrument cleaning requires dedicated sinks kept completely separate from handwashing activities.

The impromptu stage dive successfully protected the instrument basin from contaminated hands.