

The hands of practitioners and clients are important vehicles for cross-infection.
Some hands require industrial intervention.